

Take a Closer Look.

Tucked in a southwestern suburb of Cincinnati, Ohio, is where you'll find our campus, our busy corner of the busy world. Every year, a new group of learners (just like you) arrive, eagerly welcomed by untiring staff and brilliant faculty.

Just on the edge of campus you'll find our neighbors and our founders, the Sisters of Charity of Cincinnati. Since 1920, their values have infused everything we do. We could not be more proud or more humbled by their gentle, shrewd guidance.

YOU'RE IN GOOD COMPANY

More than 3.7 million students have chosen a private liberal arts and sciences education. Nearly 80 percent of these students were able to earn their degrees in four years or less, compared to just less than 50 percent at four-year state institutions.¹

A liberal arts and sciences education sets you apart as a student and a potential employee. A liberal arts education provides “broad, integrative learning focused by engagement with big questions, both contemporary and enduring.”²

Writing, problem solving, interpersonal, leadership, and understanding social problems are a few of the critical skills you’ll develop. Not surprisingly, 69 percent of employers endorse liberal education as a very important type of education provided by colleges and universities.³

The Learning Center, Academic Advising Resource Center and Success Coaching exist for the personal triumph of each and every student.

A variety of travel study programs take you to England, Italy, Greece, or Egypt.

EDUCATING YOU

Our liberal arts and sciences education comes to life in the classroom, the lab, the playing field. It overflows to Indian Reservations in South Dakota and to disaster victims in Honduras. It affects corporate boardrooms, operating rooms and the backrooms of food pantries.

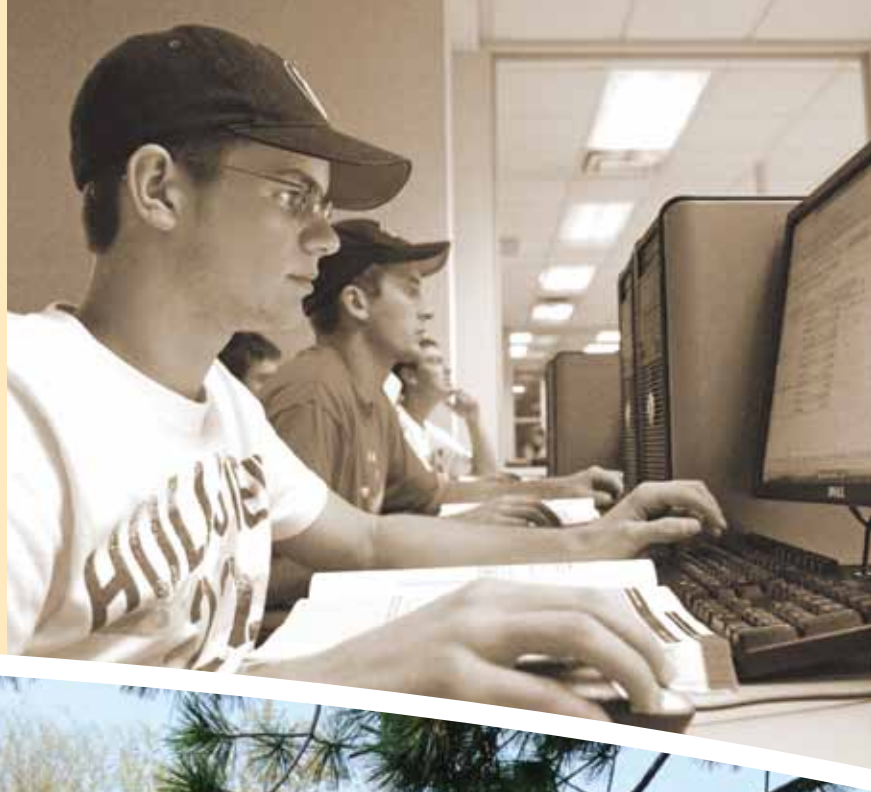

We take educating you quite seriously. You should expect nothing less. Your life and your vocation will unfold as you come to learn the art (and science) of feeding your brain and your soul. You'll tackle tough courses, and (quite possibly) triumph at intramural dodgeball. You'll appreciate being challenged.

You'll come here to get ready for the world around you.

EXPECT TO MAKE CHOICES

You'll be expected to make choices: Co-op, internships, practicums, clinicals, networking lunches, faculty-led research, capstone projects, career planning. Many companies and nonprofit agencies are committed to enriching your education. You'll learn by doing.

WHAT'S IT ALL FOR?

Of the 2010 graduate survey respondents, 83.5 percent are employed. Consistently, Mount graduates continue their success stories in a vast variety of industries: health care, education, business, and art. We're just as proud of the alum who feeds the homeless as we are the alum who provides medical assistance to a major league baseball team.

Each and every one of our 41+ academic programs offer co-op.

WHAT'S TO DO?

Cincinnati is loaded with cool places, quaint neighborhoods and year-around festivals.

For the brave and bold, intramural sports including basketball and soccer. The next level is NCAA Division III competition on 24 teams.

INVESTING IN YOUR EDUCATION

We value your investment in a private education. Navigating the many financial aid options is easier with our friendly and informed staff of financial aid counselors.

For 2012-2013, several levels of academic scholarships are available, ranging from $6,000 to $13,000.

The average amount of scholarships/grants awarded to a full-time freshman at the Mount in 2010-2011 was $12,956.
